Advancing spine surgery through innovation, both inside and outside of the operating room, for the sole purpose of benefiting our patients, is one of the most gratifying aspects of being a leader in the spine surgery field," Dr. Michael Gleiber.

Michael A. Gleiber, MD, is an Ivy league trained, board-certified, orthopedic spine surgeon and media spokesperson for the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons. Dr. Gleiber's clinical expertise includes minimally invasive spine surgical treatment of herniated discs, spinal stenosis, scoliosis, myelopathy, degenerative disc disease, spondylolisthesis, spinal trauma and spinal tumors and infections.

He is an affiliate assistant professor of clinical biomedical sciences at The Charles E. Schmidt Florida Atlantic University College of Medicine in the orthopedic spine surgery division. He is a Diplomat of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery, member of the North American Spine Society, and Fellow of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgery.

In addition to his reputation as a leader in the field of minimally invasive spine surgery, Dr. Gleiber writes for The Huffington Post and has written on a number of topics including sciatica and tips for keeping one's back healthy. He has also been featured in The New York Times, Fox News, ESPN Radio, ABC, and NBC. Dr. Gleiber is also editor of the medical online Journal of Orthopaedics & Rheumatology.

Dr. Gleiber earned his medical degree with distinction at the George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C. He completed his residency at Columbia University Medical Center, New York Presbyterian Hospital in New York City. Additionally, he completed The Kenton D. Leatherman Spine Surgery fellowship in neurosurgical and orthopaedic spine surgery and spinal trauma.
